New Waves in Philosophical Logic by Greg Restall at Abbey ...

Philosophical logic has been, and continues to be, a driving force behind much progress and development in philosophy more broadly. This collection by up-and-coming philosophical logicians deals with a broad range of topics, including, for example, proof-theory, probability, context-sensitivity, dialetheism and dynamic semantics. From Type-Free Truth to Type-Free Probability

Leitgeb [3] formulates a probabilistic theory of type-free truth that includes, amongst others, principles on the probabilities of sentences that speak about their own truth or falsity. In section 1 of the present paper we will recapitulate this theory. Section 2 is devoted to some new observations about that theory and to a set of open

Beall and Restall intend this point as a reductio on the assumption that logic is absolutely general; they do not mean it as an argument for logical nihilism. Still, some authors have taken the prospect of logical nihilism more seriously, adding an additional option to the field that includes logical pluralism and logical monism (Mortensen 1989; Cotoir 2018; Russell forthcoming).
